

POINT8SIX

'POINT8SIX is a rare bit of bizarro brilliance that will leave you wondering who stole the butter and put it in your shoe.'

4.5 Stars - ArtsHub

'It's rare to find a theatremaker who trusts the crowd enough to throw them so far from the shore of sense...'

- John Bailey, Realtime

'Mind-twisting, hilarious sci-fi'

- Anne-Marie Peard, Sometimes Melbourne

It is the year 2142, and also, it is the year 1971, and also it is the year approximately now ...

An absurd philosophical political comedy for six actors exploring the balance of power between the individual, the community, and the state. Directed by Kirsten von Bibra, the cast comprises writer Tim Wotherspoon, Annabel Marshall-Roth (Nitram, DC's Legends of Tomorrow, Transparent) and Melbourne Theatre Stalwarts Lliam Amor, Rebecca Bower, Matt Furlani and Leigh Lule. With costume design by Mattea Davies, lighting design by Kris Chainey and sound design by Tim Wotherspoon.

POINT8SIX* is an urgent, humanist comedy epic about life, the universe, philosophy, the Cold War, Berlin, espionage, the future, the past, revisionism, radio, consolidated power, ruthlessness, appropriation, limitless rage, the infinite quantum sheet and the eternal murder of the moment.

Unabashed and completely mad, a formidable romp in Absurdia.

*.86 seconds – the average time it takes a heart to beat.
